Response to the Non-Criminal Barricade: Disengagement & Special Relationships®

August 29, 2024
Pittsburgh, PA

Upper St. Clair Police Department
1820 McLaughlin Run Road | Pittsburgh, PA 15241

Hosted by the Upper St. Clair Police Department

Instructor: Lt. Donald Anderson, San Francisco Police Department

$299/student

This course teaches law enforcement officers and supervisors the best way to respond to mentally ill persons who are armed, barricaded, and in crisis. You'll leave the course with an understanding of modern disengagement and re-engagement tactics, the specific ways to avoid liability, and a collection of the best non-criminal barricade policies from police agencies all around the country.

Each student will receive:

- ✔ An understanding of your state's laws regarding the public duty doctrine, special relationships, liability, and duty
- ✔ A decision-making cheat sheet for disengagement
- ✔ Policies, a police report template, and a script to use to sever special relationships

This course breaks down the relevant laws that govern liability, "special relationships", and the "public duty doctrine". You will walk away with modern tactics your agency can use to both limit liability and prevent violent confrontations.

Your instructor, Donald Anderson, is an active-duty Lieutenant with the San Francisco Police Department. Donald is an experienced law enforcement professional who regularly responds to critical incidents, including barricade subjects, as a Team Leader on the department's Crisis Negotiation Team. Donald has not only studied best practices for responding to non-criminal barricades but is also a real-world practitioner, frequently responding to such incidents. He is an experienced trainer who is passionate about helping police officers navigate these challenging incidents and saving lives.
